DR. JOHNSON says, "Every other author may aspire to praise; the lexicographer can only hope to escape reproach, and even this negative recompense has been yet granted to very few." If such were the depressing prospects under which our great lexicographer commenced his dictionary of the English language, one of the most extensively read and spoken on the face of the earth, what must be the feelings of him who undertakes to prepare a dictionary for a language spoken and read by one of the smallest of living communities? My encouragements, or rather my discouragements, are in one respect, however, the reverse of Dr. Johnson's. If the chances of praise are diminished, the dangers of reproach are correspondingly lessened; so that, as far as the writer's fame depends on the subject of the book, the difference in point of "negative recompense" will be all in my favour; there will be fewer to blame me.

Utility, not literary distinction, was my aim in preparing this Dictionary. My object was to have all the words in the language at my command while engaged in translating a part, and editing the whole, of the Aneityumese Bible, published by the British and Foreign Bible Society ; and a small volume, published by the Religious Tract Society, containing the first part of the Pilgrim's Progress (abridged), a Hymnal, an Initiatory Catechism, and the Westminster Assembly's Shorter Catechism. The Dictionary contains all the words collected by the late Rev. Dr. Geddie, the Rev. Joseph Copeland, and myself. They are nearly five thousand in number. The first draft of the Grammar was made by the Rev. Thomas Powell, F.L.S., missionary of the London Missionary Society in Samoa, who in 1848 accompanied Mr. Geddie to the New Hebrides, and assisted him for a year in commencing the mission on Aneityum. About a twelvemonth ago Mr. Powell sent me a copy of the outlines which he drew up at that time, and which gives a fair view of the structure of the language.

The Grammar and Dictionary which I had thus prepared, I subsequently corrected and copied out for the press ; and they are now printed, in the first place, for the benefit of the Mission, and, in the next place, as a small contribution to comparative philology. As the Aneityumese language belongs to a new family of tongues, the Papuan, comprising, perhaps, at least a hundred dialects or languages, and which are spoken from Fiji to Papua or New Guinea, and as a Grammar and Dictionary of only one of these, namely, that of Fiji, has been published, it appears to me that the publication of a Grammar and Dictionary of the Aneityumese language would be a contribution to this science from a quarter all but entirely new, and likely to be useful to those who are engaged in this interesting department of human knowledge. The Introduction was written with the view of conveying to the minds of general readers some definite ideas respecting the more outstanding principles and peculiarities of the two great South Sea languages, the Malay and the Papuan, with special reference to that dialect of the Papuan spoken on Aneityum, and to relieve the book from the repulsive aspect of a dry vocabulary of new and unknown words. And I may safely say with the writer of the second book of Maccabees, "If I have done well, and as is befitting the subject, it is that which I desired; but if slenderly and meanly, it is that which I could attain unto."

"Sed verbum sat sapienti."

INTRODUCTION.

THE South Sea, or Pacific Ocean, is the largest on the face of the globe. It is in round numbers 7000 miles square. It is studded in all directions with islands and groups of islands; and, with a few trifling exceptions, they are all inhabited. All the natives of those islands belong to two, and only two, races of people—the Malay-Polynesian and the Papuan. If a line be drawn from the south-west point of New Zealand to the north-west point of the Sandwich Islands, it will pass between Fiji and the Tongan group: all the islands to the east of this line are peopled exclusively by Malays, and all the islands to the west of it, with slight exceptions, by the Papuans. The Malays are of Asiatic origin, evidently descendants of Shem; the Papuans are of African origin, evidently descendants of Ham. In personal appearance the two races are quite distinct; the Malays, in appearance and civilisation, are much superior to the Papuans. The Malays are copper-coloured, with smooth black hair; they are tall and well formed in person. They are evidently a much later migration than the Papuans. These latter are of a dirty-looking black, or coffee-and-milk colour, with crisp frizzled hair, varying in shade from black to yellowish and whitish. They are in general lower in stature and smaller in size than the Malays, though many of them are powerful, muscular, well-made men.

But while physically the Malays and the Papuans are perfectly distinct, it is in their language where the distinction of race is most clearly marked and most fully discernible. The languages they respectively speak belong to two entirely distinct families of tongues ; they are totally different both in their grammar and their vocables, both in the structure of their sentences and in the words of which the sentences are composed. The Malay race in those islands speak all one language, although they speak a number of dialects ; but the inhabitants of each group speak only one dialect. On the other hand, the language of the Papuans is not only different from that of the Malays, but it is a language broken up into a great number of dialects, not fewer perhaps than a hundred. Not only is there a different dialect on each group, but there is a distinct dialect on almost every island, and sometimes more than one on the same island, and they are rather languages than dialects ; a knowledge of one of these dialects is scarcely any help to the learning of another, any more than a knowledge of German would be to the learning of Gaelic. Nevertheless there are certain philological principles underlying all those very widely differing dialects ; there are certain grammatical forms, and certain words or parts of words, that run through all those dialects or languages, so far as we know them from the researches of the missionaries belonging to the London Missionary Society in the Loyalty Islands, the Wesleyan Missionary Society in Fiji, the Church of England Melanesian Mission in the Solomon and other groups, and in our own Presbyterian Mission in the New Hebrides, all strongly indicating that the inhabitants of those groups had at one time all spoken the same language, or at least that all their diversified tongues have been derived from one parent stock.

Several of the small coral islands in the New Hebrides, the Solomon Islands, and other groups, are inhabited by little colonies of Malays, who retain and speak their own language comparatively little affected by the presence of Papuan languages.

The conclusion at which we arrive from the state of these two families of languages, and other facts, is this, that the Papuans occupied those groups of islands long before the arrival of the Malays. The first empires that arose in the world were founded by the descendants of Ham. According to the marginal reading of Genesis x. 11, Nimrod, the grandson of Ham, went into Assyria and founded Nineveh; and the city which he built, and the empire which he founded, continued for ages to overshadow all Western Asia. Mizraim, the son of Ham, founded the Egyptian monarchy and the Philistian commonwealth; Canaan, the fourth son of Ham, settled in Palestine, and his descendants founded first the Canaanitish kingdoms, then Tyre, and subsequently Carthage. These were for a very long period the leading nations of the world; they possessed its highest civilisation, and held all but a monopoly of its commerce. While the command was still but comparatively recent, "Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it," these young monarchies no doubt sent forth strong and vigorous colonies, and took possession of all those islands in Western Polynesia, as well as of Australia, and have occupied them ever since.

But it is to the languages of those two races, especially the Papuans, and still more particularly to that of the Aneityumese, that I wish to confine my remarks. The Malay language in all its dialects is uncommonly smooth; it abounds in vowels; and there is one peculiarity in it not found in any other language, namely, that every syllable ends in a vowel. In the Papuan languages syllables end in both vowels and consonants. There is another difference between the Malay and Papuan, at least between the Maori or New Zealand and the Aneityumese. In the Maori the passive form of the verb predominates, in the Aneityumese it is the active form that is the most common. Indeed, for a while we were in doubt if there was any passive voice at all; and the passive form is distinguished from the active chiefly by having the nominative suppressed, and in some parts by a slight change in the verb to be. In the Maori the sentence would often run thus, "The house was built by thee;" "The child was carried by his mother." In Aneityumese these would invariably take the active form, thus, "Thou didst build the house;" "The mother carried her child." The Aneityumese has a great proneness for the verbal form. Where in English we should use a noun or an adverb, the Aneityumese would use a verb or an adjective, thus, "The Lord is thy keeper" would be, "The Lord keepeth thee;" "Sit down quickly" would be, "Be quick and sit down."

Another peculiarity is this: while all the Malays, like other nations, count by tens, all the Papuans count by fives only. When Mungo Park was travelling in Western Africa, on his way to Timbuctoo, he found several tribes that counted by fives, not by tens, thus showing that in one very essential point there was a common relationship between the Africans and the Papuans. The Papuans proceed thus: They count the fingers on the one hand till they come to five, and then they say my hand, whatever that word may be in the language, for five; then my hand and one for six, my hand and two for seven, and so on till they come to ten, for which they say my two hands; they do the same thing with their ten toes, and then say my two hands and my two feet for twenty. All beyond this in Aneityumese is many, a great many, a great great many.

In both the Malay and the Papuan languages the first person dual and plural has both an inclusive and an exclusive form, we inclusive is you and I, including the person or persons spoken to; the exclusive is we, or they and I, excluding the person or persons spoken to. This distinction has to be carefully observed by the speaker both in prayer and preaching; the expression, "We have sinned," is used in English both in prayer and preaching without causing any mistake, but in Aneityumese it must be expressed in two forms. In prayer we say, "Eera mun ago nedo has aijama ;” in preaching we say, “Ina mun ago nedo has akaija ;” the former the exclusive, the latter the inclusive ; the former excluding the object of prayer, the person spoken to ; the latter including the audience, the persons spoken to. If these forms were reversed, the person praying would include God among the persons sinning, which would be blasphemous language, and the person preaching would exclude his audience from the list of those sinning, and they would understand him to mean that we, the missionaries, have sinned, but not you, the people.

Both the Malay and the Papuan have a dual number in the personal pronouns, but the Papuans have in most of the islands a trial or triad as well as a dual, a word for we three as well as we two. The plural is not used till there are four persons at least.

Both the Malay and Papuan, like most languages in a similar condition, are deficient in abstract terms, but are well supplied with concrete. This holds specially true of the Aneityumese. Nearly every member of the body and every relationship of life is expressed, not in the abstract, but in the concrete form. There is no word for hand only, or father only ; it is nikmak, my hand ; etmam, thy father ; the pronoun is invariably coupled with the noun, or the preposition is joined with the noun, as nikmai Job, the hand of Job ; etmai Noa, the father of Noa. Even neuter nouns follow the same principle : incai is a tree, but leaf, flower, fruit, are all expressed in a concrete form, as nerin, its leaf ; intisian, its flower ; nohwan, its fruit ; and through all the islands of the New Hebrides, although the nouns vary, the pronouns affixed, namely, k, m, n, &c., or similar letters, for my, thy, his, &c., are the same.

Among both Malays and Papuans the natives have only one name. They often change their names, but there are no surnames. When I went to Aneityum the population was 3500, and there could not be fewer than 3000 distinct names. Dr. Geddie and I wrote down every one of them. The surnames in England, according to the report of the Registrar-General, are only about 4000. The natives were very fond of new names. When the Samoan teachers lived on Aneityum, before the settlement of the missionaries, they gave a good many of the natives Samoanised Scripture names ; but we discouraged this practice as tending to injure the language by introducing words not in accordance with its structure. The name of every fish, fowl, tree, and flower has been pressed into the list of names for men and women ; also every colour and every quality, at least all the bad ones. Strange as it may appear, they gave few if any good names ; their names, like their gods, were calculated to excite fear, not to call forth love. We had Inhas o un, His badness ; Natahing has, Bad girl. Men's and women's names were always quite distinct. Such a name for a woman as George Eliot would be as exceptional there as it is here.

Some people are apt to think that low, degraded savages like the Papuans can have no right language at all ; their speech must be merely a kind of gibberish, having neither correct sense, sound, nor grammar. Quite recently the Anglican Bishop of Western Australia issued an appeal for funds, to assist in educating the blacks in his diocese through the medium of the English language, on the ground that their language was not adapted for conveying to their minds religious instruction. The editor of the Sydney Presbyterian, himself a missionary for twenty-three years, an expert in native languages, very pertinently asks, "Has the bishop tried the experiment fully ? Is there a white man in the colony who really knows the language of these blacks ? Let them set to and acquire a knowledge of the language or languages spoken by the natives, and they will doubtless find that it is a vehicle capable of conveying to the native mind a clear conception of the truths of the Bible." Such at least has been our experience on Aneityum and other islands of the New Hebrides. When the missionaries first went to Aneityum in 1848, they found a language, having no affinity whatever to the Malay, floating indistinctly, as they thought, on the lips of the natives. There was no literature, not a word of it had ever been written or made visible to the eye, but they began at once to reduce it to writing. They formed an alphabet ; they found out the meaning of the words ; they discovered their true pronunciation ; and they ascertained the grammatical structure of the language. And the result is, that we have a language at our command both copious and exact, capable of giving utterance to every thought and every idea, every want and every wish, known to those to whom it is their mother-tongue. The words are all as precise in their meanings as if they had been defined by Johnson or Jamieson. The grammar is as regular and uniform as if it had been formed by Lindley Murray, by Lennie, or by M'Culloch ; while the pronunciation is as exact as if it had been settled and phonographed by Walker, Webster, or Worcester. We have felt no special difficulty in finding words to express every idea contained in the Bible, in both the Old and New Testaments, also the Pilgrim's Progress and the Shorter Catechism. We have now and again to use circumlocutions, but we had to introduce very few new words.

Perhaps I cannot better convey an idea of the peculiarities of the Aneityumese language than by stating the way in which we had to translate certain passages in the Bible. It is often difficult to decide whether the inclusive or exclusive form of the pronoun should be used, whether the sense required for we is you and I or they and I. In my last revision of the Bible I had lying before me four South Sea translations in the Malay language where this form of the pronoun is used, and I sometimes found two of these translations had rendered the pronoun in the one form and two in the other ; and sometimes, instead of two against two, it was three against one. As the original and all the versions have simply a plural for all numbers above one, it is often necessary to examine the context very carefully to ascertain whether two, three, or more persons is the antecedent of the pronoun, to know whether the dual, the trial, or the plural number is to be used. Thus in Genesis i. 26, we have to assume the doctrine of the Trinity to be true, and to say not, "Let us make man in our image, after our likeness," but "Let us three make man in the image of us three, after the likeness of us three;" and in Genesis xi. 7, not, "Go to, let us go down," but "Go to, let us three go down." If we had used the plural as in English, it would have implied that there were four persons here taking counsel, and hence that there were four persons in the Godhead.

Dr. Robert Young, in his Introduction to his English Translation of the Scriptures, says that there are two modes of translating the Bible into English; the one by taking the standpoint of the Jew, and rendering Jewish thought and Jewish idiom into English words; the other by taking a modern standpoint and rendering Jewish thought into the form of English thought and English idiom. Dr. Young has followed the former of these modes, and his translation is interesting and useful to the scholar and the antiquary, but it is not suited for unlearned or ordinary readers. In our translation we have followed the latter of these modes, and have endeavoured to make the Hebrew writers speak as they would have done had they been Aneityumese speaking to natives of Aneityum. For example, the figurative has almost always to be changed into the literal, and the abstract into the concrete. The Hebrew writers address, or speak of, the inhabitants of a land, or of a city, by the title of daughter, as daughter of Sion, daughter of Jerusalem, daughter of Tyre, daughter of Babylon, &c.; or they use simply the name of the country, or the city, for the people, as O Judah, O Israel, O Jerusalem. We have to drop the poetry of such expressions, translate them into plain prose, and speak of the people, or the inhabitants, of Judah, of Sion, and of Jerusalem. Again, "They shall fall by the sword." As the Aneityumese have no swords, this sentence would be meaningless if translated literally. But when we say, "They shall be killed in war," the expression is both intelligible and forcible. "To your tents, O Israel," we render, "To your homes, O men of Israel." The Hebrew writers speak of a righteous man, a wicked man, a rich man, and a poor man, when they mean the class as a whole, not a single individual. The Aneityumese never speak in this way. If we translated these passages in the singular, they would understand them as referring to an individual, not to a class. In the Scriptures, especially in the laws of Moses, and in the prophetic books, there is a frequent interchange both of the number and of the person, the singular for the plural, and the third personal pronoun for the first. The Aneityumese have no such transitions; hence, in order to prevent misapprehension, we have often to render the singular by the plural, and the plural by the singular, when such is the evident meaning. The singular would, no doubt, be more forcible to a Hebrew, but it would be bewildering to a native of Aneityum. A Hebrew would perfectly understand the singular for the plural, a native of Aneityum would not. For instance, in the Lamentations of Jeremiah, the prophet, to give a more vivid description of the misery and wretchedness of the nation, concentrates, to a large extent, the sufferings of the people upon himself, and uses the first person singular; whereas in our translation, to prevent mistake, we have used the first person plural. Jeremiah says, "I am the man that hath seen affliction;" in the Aneityumese translation it is rendered, "We are the people who have seen affliction." Paul often uses the plural when he is speaking simply of himself, as in 1 Thess. iii. 1, "We thought it good to be left at Athens alone." Conybeare and Howson, in their Life of the Apostle, when translating his Epistles, have rendered the idiomatic Greek into equally idiomatic English, and made such plurals all singulars, and say, "I thought it good," &c. We have done the same, because the Aneityumese have no royal, or editorial, or oratorical

We for the first person singular. I means I, and we means we, and neither more nor less. Again, blood, the shedding of blood, the pouring out of blood, the sprinkling of blood, &c., are ever-recurring words in connection with the sacrificial system of the Israelites, and they pass over from the old economy to the new, and supply vocables for expressing the nature and efficacy of the atoning death of Christ. His blood becomes equivalent to His atonement. Blood has no such meaning in the language of Aneityum. But the death of Christ, and His being killed or slain as a sacrifice for the sins of men, are expressions quite plain and intelligible to the Aneityumese. We do not reject Hebrew idioms, when the use of them produces no obscurity, and can lead to no mistakes, any more than is done in the authorised English version, such as to see with the eyes, to hear with the ears, to speak with the lips, and to understand with the heart; although a native of Aneityum would say simply see, hear, speak, or understand, without any reference to the organs by which these actions are performed. But no mistake can occur by the use of such Hebrew idioms; and such redundant expressions give a freshness, a fulness, and a force to the language, which it seems desirable to retain.

It seems now to be an admitted principle in Hebrew grammar that the past tense is used for the future, to denote the absolute certainty of the predicted event; and that the present tense is used for both the past and the future, by the writer assuming that he is an eyewitness of what he records of the past, or of what he predicts of the future. The lamented Bishop Patteson, adopting these or similar views of Hebrew grammar, says that all the languages in the South Seas have, as to tenses, the same grammatical structure as the Hebrew. "Really," he says, "the time is not inherent in tense at all in Hebrew. All languages in the South Seas are constructed on this principle. We say, 'When I get there, it will be night,' but all South Sea Islanders, 'I am there, and it is night.' The time is given by something in the context, which indicates that the speaker's mind is in past, present, or future time" (Life, vol. ii. p. 476). One hesitates and doubts, and hesitates again, before he can muster courage to call in question a statement distinctly put forth by a man of such linguistic celebrity as the late Bishop Patteson. These principles may apply to all the other South Sea languages, but they certainly will not apply to the Aneityumese language, in which the past, present, and future tenses are as distinctly expressed as they are in English. The Bishop further says (Ibid. p. 506):—"You agree with a Maori to make a long journey to-morrow, to start very early—at 4 A.M.—to avoid being benighted. At 4.30 A.M. the Maori wakes you up in your tent with the words, Kua po, 'It is already night.' What can be neater, more condensed?" Very true; but is the translation correct? According to Dr. Williams's Dictionary—and Williams, as a Maori scholar, stands immeasurably higher than Patteson—po means to be late, as well as night; hence kua po means "it is late," as well as "it is night." And, as the supposed native comes half-an-hour after the time fixed upon for starting, it is much more likely that he means by his kua po "it is late," that is, for starting, than that it is night, meaning "it will be night before we get to our journey's end." But be these things as they may, it is clear and certain that, assuming these views of the Hebrew tenses to be correct, it would be worse than useless in us—it would be misleading—to follow them in translating Hebrew into Aneityumese. Did space permit, I could multiply examples of these peculiarities. But it is enough to know that, in the Aneityumese language, God has provided a vehicle by means of which His whole inspired Word can be fully, clearly, intelligibly, and exactly communicated to the inhabitants of that remote and obscure island, although the idiom and form of their language are in many points different from that of Hebrew, or Greek, or Latin, or English. This is clearly seen from the fact that the natives value the Bible;

they pay for it ; they read it daily ; they have an intelligent understanding of its meaning ; they accept it as God's own word, and believe in it as such ; and it has become largely the guiding principle of their lives.

When we say that there are twenty languages spoken in the New Hebrides, and a hundred languages in the whole of Melanesia ; that the one will require twenty Bibles, and the whole five times that number, before every individual among them can hear or read the wonderful works of God in his own tongue,—when we say this, people hold up their hands in amazement, and say, Why, that is equal to a fourth of all the languages of the world. Is there no one language that you can discover that would be understood by the whole ? When we assure them that no such language can be found, they then say, But can you not teach them all to speak English ? and when we assert this to be impossible, they look upon the case as hopeless. But I meet the difficulty in this way, and say to them, It is true we have hitherto had so few translations of the Bible, that the labour of producing one is no doubt greatly exaggerated. It has been only men of gigantic intellect, like Wickliffe, Tyndale, or Luther, that were deemed capable of undertaking such a task. But if Dr. Geddie and myself, assisted to some extent in the Old Testament by Mr. Copeland ; if two average missionaries, during the length of an average missionary lifetime, after discharging an average amount of other missionary duties, have given to the natives of one island a complete translation of the Bible, and given to the world a grammar and a dictionary of the language ; have not only given the natives the Bible, but have taught them to read it, and, what is perhaps more difficult, have succeeded in teaching them to pay for it ;—if we have done this, surely any other two average missionaries may do the same thing for the people speaking another language ; and surely, in these times of enterprise and activity, the same effort may be nineteen times repeated ; and then, as far as the New Hebrides is concerned, the work is done. But the work is going on ; seven different translations are in progress just now, and seven more grammars and dictionaries are being prepared. Moreover, four other missions are at present engaged in the evangelisation of the Papuan race : viz., the American Board of Foreign Missions, the London Missionary Society, the Wesleyan Missionary Society, and the Church of England Melanesian Mission ; if each of these, as they are well able to do, supplies twenty translations of the Bible, as well as our own Presbyterian Mission, the work would be completed. It is therefore not only possible, but it is probable, yea, highly probable, all but morally certain, that at no distant day a complete translation of the Bible will exist in every language spoken in Western Polynesia. Let the Churches arise in their strength, and the work is done. Science and commerce, by their unprecedented activity in those regions, are stimulating Christianity to redouble her efforts for the evangelisation and civilisation of those polyglot, savage races. Science, with untiring energy, is sending out ships and agents. She is dredging the ocean and searching the land, climbing the mountains and exploring the forests, collecting the fauna and the flora, gathering seaweed and grasses, ferns and flowering shrubs, eggs and shells, beetles and butterflies, birds and fishes ; filling the natural history departments of every museum in Europe with her collections. Are not the languages and the souls of men, even savage men, of more value than these ? Commerce, with a keen eye to extensive business and large profits, has discovered that the element of labour is lying largely diffused among those islands, that it can be easily collected and profitably utilised ; and she is yearly sending forth fleets of vessels to kidnap the poor unsuspecting natives, to seize them by force or decoy them by fraud, to carry them away either by fair means or by foul, to exhibit them virtually as chattels, and dispose of them as such in the labour markets of Queensland, Fiji, and New Caledonia, where their bones and their sinews are being transmuted into gold, in the picking of cotton and the planting of sugar-cane, in digging in spring and reaping in harvest, the result of all being, for the natives, a record of mortality exceptionally high. Is not a man better than a sheep? Gold may be bought too dear, and Christianity ought not to allow commerce and colonisation to go on exterminating these races. Under the much-belauded civilisation, supplied by commerce and the labour traffic, the native races in Western Polynesia would, in process of time, and that not long hence, like the natives of Tasmania, be numbered with the things that were. Nothing but Christianity can save the Papuans from perishing; nothing but Christian missions can civilise those savages, and raise them up to take their place in the comity of civilised nations; nothing but Bible-teaching will put an end to those ever-recurring scenes of bloodshed,—the cutting-off of boats' crews by the natives, and the visits of men-of-war to punish outrages. Christianity and Christian missions have evangelised the whole of Eastern Polynesia, and rendered life and property everywhere secure; and the same process is going on in Western Polynesia, but a sine quâ non, an indispensable condition of success, is a thorough knowledge of the languages spoken by the natives. It has been truly said that, next to the Spirit of God operating upon the heart of a native, is the effect of hearing his own tongue spoken by a foreigner. It has always been so. When the Jews heard that Paul spake in the Hebrew tongue to them, they kept the more silence; they were riveted by the sounds of their mother-tongue. Perhaps no man of his time had more influence over the natives of New Zealand than the late Sir Donald M'Lean, and, doubtless, one cause of this remarkable power lay in his extraordinary command of the native language. He not only knew the Maori language, and pronounced it accurately, but he spoke with the very tones of a native. Any one hearing him speak, and not seeing him, would have supposed that it was a native whom he heard speaking. It has been the same with all our best and most successful missionaries, such as John Williams, John Hunt, Bishop Selwyn, Bishop Patteson, and many others that could be named, scarcely, if at all, inferior to these. When we come to know natives thoroughly; when you can converse freely with them through the medium of their own language; when you have gained their confidence, and can learn from themselves their thoughts and their beliefs, their hopes and their fears, the objects of their love and the objects of their hatred; especially, when they come to understand the gospel, and come fully under its influence, you begin to find that these degraded savages are thoroughly human, that they are capable of all the warm, and tender, and genial, and grateful affection which one human being can feel towards another. Traders may get along after a sort, may buy and sell, through the medium of a kind of broken, pigeon, or sandal-wood English, such as "Me savy;" "Me want big fellow yam;" "You too much like go Sydney;" but the missionary who aims at being successful must be able to speak like a native. No missionary nowadays, so far as I know, ever thinks of preaching regularly to natives through the medium of an interpreter. David Brainerd was perhaps the most successful missionary that ever preached to natives by means of an interpreter, yet he had no success among his hearers till his burning words were the means of converting his interpreter, and then, when his sentences were translated and repeated by lips nearly as glowing as his own, their effect was marvellous. However, I have no doubt but that his preaching would have been still more effective had his hearers received it at first, and not at second, hand.

This contribution of ours, the translation of the Bible, &c., into the Aneityumese language, and this grammar and dictionary of the same tongue, may be regarded as the second full instalment to philology in the Papuan languages; the Fijian Bible by the Wesleyan missionaries, and the grammar and dictionary of the Fijian language, by the Rev. David Hazelwood and the Rev. James Calvert, being the first. And if our efforts shall stimulate our coadjutors or our successors to continued and sustained exertions to acquire these languages, we shall have a twofold reward ; namely, that of contributing both directly and indirectly to the benefit of the natives. It is a dry, arduous, uphill work to acquire these unwritten and non-literary languages. But when at every stage of our progress we feel conscious that we are opening up a channel through which the living water is to flow, that gives spiritual life to immortal souls, these uncultured tongues become invested with more than classical beauty, and acquire a higher practical value than the writing on the Moabite Stone, or the characters on the Hittite inscriptions.

There is no stronger proof of the unity of the human race than is to be found in the various languages. God has given to every people under heaven a completely formed and fully articulated language, amply sufficient, as a vehicle, to convey the truths of His revealed will—truths made known to secure their present well-being and their eternal salvation. During my thirty-three years of mission life in New Zealand and in the New Hebrides, I had ample opportunities of becoming intimately acquainted with both the Malay and Papuan races in the South Seas, two races that, in physical appearance and in language, are as distinct from one another as both of them are from us. I conversed extensively with both in their respective languages ; I saw both races, on a large scale, as they had lived for centuries ; I was more or less intimately acquainted with missionaries belonging to the other four large missions to the natives ; and yet to me, and, I believe, to every missionary in the South Seas, it is as clearly a matter of fact as an article of faith, that God “hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth.” A great deal has been said about pre-Adamite man and pre-historic man, of the dwellers in caves and the dwellers on lakes, one class pleading for a diversity of species, another advocating an antiquity inconsistent with any accepted interpretation of Scripture, and tracing all our civilisation to a slow but gradual development from a state of primitive barbarism and savage existence. But the data on which such opinions are formed concerning these races are scanty and conflicting, and the conclusions drawn are often largely coloured by the preconceived opinions of the investigators. But here, in the South Seas, were discovered, and that, comparatively speaking, quite recently, two large sections of pre-historic men, during the most outstanding portion of the Stone age, and the period of lake villages not having yet past away. Weapons of stone and flint, of bones and shells, could be collected to any extent. Abundant evidence is to be found that both races are retrograding, but none that they are advancing, in either civilisation, intelligence, morality, or happiness. They all point backward to a higher state of civilisation from which they are falling. On Aneityum there is a large system of irrigation, but of an ancient date; long canals cut as scientifically as if levels and inclines had been laid down by the surveyor with the aid of his theodolite. If you ask the natives who made these old canals for irrigation, they tell you they do not know; they suppose that they were made by the natmases, that is, the gods, or, in other words, the spirits of their forefathers, which, of course, means their forefathers themselves. The natives of Aneityum make fishing-nets; and five-and-twenty years ago, or so, the captain of a British man-of-war and his officers examined some of these nets, and told us that the stitch of the Aneityum nets was the same as those made in the south of England. The likelihood is, therefore, that they brought the knowledge of making their nets from some of the old centres of civilisation, and not that they invented them. There is one relic of old-world civilisation still lingering among the Papuans. The inhabitants both of Assyria and of Egypt were famous for the manipulation of clay, for the manufacture of bricks, tiles, and pottery. Now it so happens that, although the natives of Fiji, New Caledonia, and the New Hebrides could have had no intercourse with one another for many long centuries, yet on each of these three groups the natives manufacture a rude kind of pottery, and there is no evidence that they could ever have discovered this art in any one of these three groups, far less in all of them. The most probable solution is, that their forefathers must have brought it with them from the plains of Shinar or the Delta of Egypt.

Moreover, I may state another proof of the Hametic and Shemetic origin of the Papuans and Malays respectively. In Gen. ix. 25-27 it is recorded: "And Noah said, Cursed be Canaan; a servant of servants shall he be unto his brethren. Blessed be the Lord God of Shem; and Canaan shall be his servant. God shall enlarge Japheth, and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem; and Canaan shall be his servant." Now, let any one take a look at New Zealand, and then accompany us in our mission vessel the Dayspring, and we can show him this prophecy, uttered more than 4000 years ago, fulfilled to the very letter. Let us take it verse by verse. "Cursed be Canaan; a servant of servants shall he be unto his brethren." Ham was cursed in the name of his youngest, probably his favourite, son. He was cursed in his descendants. Now in the New Hebrides we see this curse lying in all its crushing weight. The poor descendants of Ham are lying in the lowest state of degradation, trodden down by the iron heel of every oppressor. Let us take the next verse: "Blessed be the Lord God of Shem; and Canaan shall be his servant." In the fulfilment of this blessing, we find that the whole of the Malay race in the South Seas had abandoned heathenism, had embraced and professed Christianity, and had the Bible translated for them into the six principal dialects of their language, while the whole, or nearly the whole, of the Papuan race were still lying in heathen darkness. And, wherever these Malays go in the South Seas, these Papuans are willing to be their servants. Everywhere we see the Papuans serving the Malays, Canaan being the servant of Shem; but nowhere do we see the Malays serving the Papuans, or Shem being the servant of Canaan. Now take the last verse: "God shall enlarge Japheth, and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem; and Canaan shall be his servant." We, the descendants of Japheth, are the great colonisers and the great evangelisers of the present day. Our fellow-countrymen in New Zealand, for example, are dwelling in the tents of Shem—they are dwelling in the land long occupied by the Maories; while the rowdyism of Sydney and Brisbane are reviving the slave-trade, kidnapping the poor Papuans, and carrying them into servitude in Queensland. But specially has God enlarged us, and given us the heritage of Shem, by making us the principal representatives of His visible Church, to dispense its blessings to the heathen; and these poor Gibeonites are willing to be hewers of wood and drawers of water to us for the house of the Lord.

The songs and the music of the Aneityumese have nothing in common with European poetry or music. Their poetry seems more akin to Hebrew than either English, Greek, or Latin. It is measured by no feet. It is neither rhyme nor blank verse, nor does it correspond in structure to the Hebrew parallelisms. It seems little else than prose—elevated prose it may be—but cut up into divisions like verses; and these are followed by choruses, chiefly single syllables with no meaning. One very common one is, Lil le, lil le; lil la, lil la; lil le, lil le. This, according to Dr. Kitto, was the kind of singing with which Laban wished to send away Jacob. The style of the poetry seems to afford facilities for improvising. The music is a kind of chanting. It runs along on the principle of a short note and a long note alternately, within a narrow scale. A gentleman, a musical scientist, who examined the subject to some extent, told me that he could discover no semitones in the Aneityum gamut. In this, if the statement is correct, it resembles the ancient Greek music, where semitones were said to be wanting, possibly only before the days of Pythagoras, the contemporary of Ezra, and who, according to the popular tradition, discovered the seven notes in music. It is evidently from its resemblance in this point to their own music that the natives sing the tune "Ortonville" with more life and spirit than almost any of our English tunes, it being composed throughout of a short and a long note alternately. They are very fond of singing their native songs. They will sing away at these syllabic choruses for any length of time, apparently, as onlookers would suppose, more from the love of the noise than the love of the music. I never, till I went to Aneityum, saw the full force of those expressions in the Psalms where men are exhorted to sing and play with a loud noise. We are disposed, with our ideas of music, to look upon these expressions as figurative. But if the Hebrew music and the Hebrew mind were in any way akin to the Aneityumese, such expressions must be understood quite literally; for a prominent characteristic of their singing, as regards their own native songs, is the "loud noise joyfully." In lamenting for the dead, the counterpart of Jeremiah's mourning women could easily be found there; and the utterances of parental anguish are expressed in the very spirit, often in the very words, of David, "O Absalom, my son, my son!"

The natives possess a fair amount of both poetical and musical talent, and they recognise the inspiration of the poet; not the inspiration of genius, as accepted by a sceptical or a secular philosophy, but a personal inspiration, a natmas, a personal spirit, distinct from the man's soul, speaking through the lips of the poet; the Scriptural idea of inspiration, as expressed by David in his last words, when he said, "The Spirit of the Lord spake by me, and His word was in my tongue." This was no idea infused into their minds by the missionaries; it was their idea of poetic inspiration in the days of heathenism, before ever they had seen the face or heard the voice of a missionary. It was stereotyped in the language, and supplied us with the vocables for translating intelligibly such expressions as, "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God."

The plenary inspiration of the Scriptures was to them a doctrine involving no difficulties. The natives have a number of songs, but none of any length, and none that claim any great antiquity. They learn music as fast as anything else; and whether or not there are semitones in their own music, in learning our tunes the whole of our gamut is as easily mastered by them as by Europeans. They are quite capable of attaining an average degree of proficiency in music, wherever the requisite instruction is bestowed.

Our psalms and hymns on Aneityum, and all the psalms and hymns in Polynesia, are written in English metres; and although many in all the groups have learned to sing well, nevertheless, I have long thought that a false principle runs through the whole system, and that both the sacred songs of the natives and their sacred music should be framed on the same principles as their secular songs and their secular music. I have heard of only one missionary in those Seas adopting something like these principles; but he, as I understood, took simply the old tunes and set them to new hymns; and as the associations connected with the old tunes were almost all bad, as they were quite saturated with the abominations of heathenism, his brethren disapproved of the plan, and his hymns were suppressed. I think he was so far on the right path, but had not fully wrought out the right method; he should have had new tunes on the same principle as the old, as well as new hymns.

At the Reformation, when the emancipated souls of whole nations sought full expression in songs of joy, like the birds in early spring, mediæval Latin hymns and Gregorian chants were vehicles far too confined to afford utterance for such exuberant feelings. Hence the minstrels of the Reformation—Luther and his compeers—seized and sanctified the national or popular music, and they translated psalms and composed hymns in the common ballad metres. In this way both the music and the metres were such as every one could understand and learn, and the voice of the whole people rose unanimous like that of one man; it was loud like the voice of many waters, and the effects were marvellous.

Music and language must go together; the one must affect the other. We go to the South Seas with our English tunes; these can be sung only to English metres. These metres are like the bed of Procrustes, a bed admirably adapted for our short, monosyllabic, nervous Saxon words; but into this bed we try to squeeze the long, sesquipedalian, untractable vocables of these Polynesian tongues, and the result is painful and disappointing.

A good many years ago, the Rev. Dr. Grant, of the American Mission to the Nestorians, said: "I have for thirty years been straining my voice to try and teach the Nestorians our English tunes, but with very indifferent success; now I have discovered that they have chants of their own in abundance, that have possibly come down to them from the days of Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthim, and which they sing with ease and spirit." The Nestorians were Christians, and had a long traditional history; and music, once embodied in the songs of a people, possesses an amazing vitality. We had no music of this kind on the New Hebrides; it was all heathen to the core.

Missionaries have so much to do; their duties are so many and so multifarious, that they cannot overtake much that they wish to do. I never had time to examine the poetry of the Aneityumese to any extent, and to analyse its structure, so as to discover fully the principles on which it is composed, and the laws by which it is regulated. Besides this, we all go out to those islands with strong prepossessions in favour of home excellences, hence it is a long time before we can tolerate, far less appreciate, much that is good in things purely native.

My hope is that some of our younger brethren may possess the requisite poetical and musical powers, and find sufficient time, to enable them to investigate this important subject, and compose sacred songs and sacred tunes, so nearly akin in principle to their own songs and their own music, that the natives will learn them with ease, and sing them with the heart, the spirit, and the understanding; that as their language has been the medium of conveying to them a knowledge of God's Word, their poetry and their music may, in like manner, be the channel through which shall ascend unto God the sweet incense of praise and thanksgiving, and all the holy emotions and devotional feelings of contrite hearts and sanctified affections.

GRAMMAR.

THERE are twenty-three letters in the Aneityumese Alphabet, viz., five vowels and eighteen consonants. The vowels are a, e, i, o, u; the consonants are b, c, d, f, g, h, j, k, l, m, n, p, r, s, t, v, w, y.

a is sounded like a in father.

e " " a " mate.

i " " i " machine; when unaccented, like i in pin.

o " " o " more.

u " " u " rule; when unaccented, like u
 in sun.

There are five diphthongs, viz., ai, au, ei, oi, eu.

ai is sounded like i in mine.

au " " ow " now.

ei " " ei " hei, in Latin.

eu " " u " kâtikin; or oo in soot, in Scotch.

oi " " oy " boy.

h at the end of a syllable is like χ in Greek, or gh, or ch in Scotch.

c is sounded like g in go, or in fig.

d " " th " broth.

g. " " ng " singer.

j " " te " righteous, or ty.

w and y are used only as consonants, and at the beginning of syllables; all the other consonants have the same powers as in English.

There are eight parts of speech:—Noun, Adjective, Pronoun, Verb, Adverb, Preposition, Interjection, and Conjunction.

Nouns generally begin with n or in; with n if followed by a vowel, as neom, a house; with in if followed by a consonant, as inman, a bird. There are two Numbers, Singular and Plural. The plural is formed by dropping n or in, as neom, a house; eom, houses; inman, a bird; man, birds; sometimes by prefixing ilpu, as etwan, a brother; ilpu etwan, brothers.

GENDER.

There are three Genders: Masculine, Feminine, and Neuter. Masculine, as natamaig, a man; Feminine, as intakata, a woman; and Neuter, as inhat, a stone.

There are two ways of distinguishing sex:—

1. By different words: as

Etman, father. | Risik, mother.

2. By affixing another word: as

Inhalav atamaig, a boy. | Inhalav atahig, a girl.

There are three Cases—Nominative, Possessive, and Objective: as

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
Nom. a etwan , brother.	a ilpu etwan , brothers.
Pos. u etwan , brother's.	u ilpu etwan , brothers'.
Obj. etwan , brother.	ilpu etwan , brothers.

The Possessive is also formed by changing the termination of the preceding word; as etmai Jona, the father of Jona, or Jona's father.

ADJECTIVES.

Adjectives are not composed regularly, but by means of adverbs, as Upene, good; idim upene, very good; upene asega, good throughout, or very good.

PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

The personal pronouns have four numbers, viz., Singular, Dual, Trial, and Plural. The first person of the Dual, the Trial, and the Plural has also an inclusive and exclusive form. The Masculine and Feminine gender of the personal pronouns are the same, and there is no pronoun for neuter nouns. The personal pronouns are as follow :—

NOMINATIVE.

SINGULAR.

- | | | |
|----|----------------|--------------|
| 1. | Ainyak, | I. |
| 2. | Aiek, | Thou or you. |
| 3. | Aien, | He or she. |

DUAL.

- | | | |
|----|--------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1. | { Akaijau, | We two (inclusive), you and I. |
| | { Aijumrau, | We two (exclusive), he or she and I. |
| 2. | Aijaurau, | You two. |
| 3. | Arau, | They two. |

TRIAL.

- | | | |
|----|---------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 1. | { Akataij, | We three (inclusive), you two and I. |
| | { Aijumtaij, | We three (exclusive), they two and I. |
| 2. | Aijautaij, | You three. |
| 3. | Ahtaij, | They three. |

PLURAL (including four and upwards).

- | | | |
|----|------------------|---|
| 1. | { Akaija, | We all (inclusive), you three or more and I. |
| | { Aijama, | We all (exclusive), they three or more and I. |
| 2. | Aijaua, | You all, you four or more. |
| 3. | Ara, | They all, they four or more. |

OBJECTIVE.

SINGULAR.

- | | | |
|----|--------------|--------------|
| 1. | Nyak, | Me. |
| 2. | Euc, | Thee or you. |
| 3. | Yiu, | Him or her. |

DUAL.

- | | | |
|----|------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 1. | { Caijau, | Us two (inclusive) you and me. |
| | { Cumrau, | Us two (exclusive) him or her and me. |
| 2. | Cunrau, | You two. |
| 3. | Rau, | Them two. |

TRIAL.

- | | | |
|----|-------------------|--|
| 1. | { Cataij, | Us three (inclusive), you two and me. |
| | { Cumtaij, | Us three (exclusive), them two and me. |
| 2. | Cautaij, | You three. |
| 3. | Ehtaij, | Them three. |

PLURAL.

- | | | |
|----|-----------------|--|
| 1. | { Cuija, | Us all (inclusive), you three or more and me. |
| | { Cuma, | Us all (exclusive), them three or more and me. |
| 2. | Cuaa, | You all, four or more. |
| 3. | Ra, | Them all, four or more. |

POSSESSIVE.

SINGULAR.

- | | | |
|----|---------------|-----------------------|
| 1. | Unyak, | My or mine. |
| 2. | Unyum, | Thy or thine or your. |
| 3. | O un, | His or hers. |

DUAL.

- | | | |
|----|---------------------|--|
| 1. | { Ujan, | Our two's (inclusive), thine and mine. |
| | { Unyimirau, | Our two's (exclusive), his or hers and mine. |
| 2. | Unyimirau, | Your two's, or of you too. |
| 3. | Urau, | Their two's, or of them two. |

TRIAL.

- | | | |
|----|----------------------|--|
| 1. | { Utaij, | Our three's (inclusive), your two's and mine. |
| | { Unyimitaij, | Our three's (exclusive), their two's and mine. |
| 2. | Unyimitaij, | Your three's, or of you three. |
| 3. | U ehtaij, | Their three's, or of you three. |

PLURAL.

- | | | |
|----|------------------|--|
| 1. | { Uja, | { Our (inclusive), your three's or more and mine. |
| | { Unyima, | { Our (exclusive), their three's or more and mine. |
| 2. | Unyimia, | Your, or of you four or more. |
| 3. | Uru, | Their, or of them four or more. |

INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

- A di,* Who, as, Is aiji igcaki a di? Who stood here?
Di, Whom, as, Is ccet di aien? Whom did he see?
U di, Whose, as, Inman u di nigki? Whose bird is this?
Inhe, What, as, Is ago inhe aien? What did he do?

II, as a part of inhe, enters into combination with verbs, and asks a question, thus:

Is ika aien, He said; Is ikha aien? What did he say?

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

- | | |
|---------------------------|--------|
| Inig, inigki, | This. |
| Naico, iyehki, | That. |
| Niji ig, iji igki, | These. |
| Niji chki, | Those. |

RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

There are no distinct relative pronouns. They are formed by a combination of the personal and demonstrative pronouns.

Inig aien,	Who, as, Natimi inig is mas aien , The man who died.
Inig yin,	{ Whom, as, Natimi inig eris ceet yin ara, The man whom they saw.
Inig o un,	{ Whose, as, Natimi inig is mas a inhal o un , The man whose child died.
Inig aien,	{ That, as, Nadualep inig is tas aien , The boy that spoke.
Inig,	{ Which, as, Nelcau inig eris ago, The canoe which was made.
Iji ig ara,	{ Who, as, Ilpu takata iji ig eris laav ara , The women who laughed.

The possessive pronoun is often an affix to the noun. This holds true of nouns marking relationship, as etmak, my father; and nouns describing parts of the body, as nikmak, my hand, thus:

SINGULAR.

1. Etmak,	My father.
2. Etmam,	Thy father.
3. Etman,	His or her father.

DUAL.

1. {	Etmajau,	{ The father of you and me, or of us two, or our two's.
	Etmamrau,	{ The father of him and me, of us two, or our two's.
2.	Etmamirau,	The father of you two.
3.	Etmarau,	The father of them two.

TRIAL.

1. {	Etmataij,	{ The father of us three (inclusive), you two and me.
	Etmamtaij,	{ The father of us three (exclusive), they two and me.
2.	Etmamitaij,	The father of you three.
3.	Etmachtaij,	The father of them three.

PLURAL.

1. {	Etmaiya,	Our father (inclusive), the father of us four or more, of you three or more and me.
	Etmuma,	Our father (exclusive), the father of us four or more, of them three or more and me.
2.	Etmamia,	Your father, the father of you four or more.
3.	Etmura,	Their father, the father of them four or more.

The prepositions are combined with the objective case of the personal pronouns in the same way, thus, ehele, to; nyak, me, as under :

SINGULAR.

- | | | |
|----|-----------------|----------|
| 1. | Ehelek , | To me. |
| 2. | Ehelum , | To thee. |
| 3. | Ehelen , | To him. |

DUAL.

- | | | | |
|----|---|---------------------|----------------|
| 1. | { | Eheleijau , | To you and me. |
| | | Ehelumrau , | To him and me. |
| 2. | | Ehelemirau , | To you two. |
| 3. | | Ehelerau , | To them two. |

TRIAL.

- | | | | |
|----|---|----------------------|---|
| 1. | { | Eheletaij , | To us three (inclusive), you two and me. |
| | | Ehelemtaij , | To us three (exclusive), them two and me. |
| 2. | | Ehelemitaij , | To you three. |
| 3. | | Ehelehtaij , | To them three. |

PLURAL.

- | | | | |
|----|---|-------------------|---|
| 1. | { | Eheleija , | To us (inclusive), you three or more and me. |
| | | Ehelema , | To us (exclusive), them three or more and me. |
| 2. | | Ehelema , | To you four or more. |
| 3. | | Ehelera | To them four or more. |

VERB.

The root of the verb undergoes no change. All changes of meaning are effected by means of the verb to be or particles. The verb has three tenses—present, past, and future. Strictly speaking, there is only one mood, the indicative. The imperative is simply a stronger form of the future, and the subjunctive is formed by particles prefixed but not joined. The pronoun follows the verb. The substantive verb to be runs thus :

PRESENT TENSE.

Singular.

- | | | |
|----|--------------------|------------------------|
| 1. | Ek ainjak , | Am I, or I am. |
| 2. | Na aick , | Art thou, or thou art. |
| 3. | Et aien , | Is he, or he is. |

Dual.

- | | | | |
|----|---|------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1. | { | Intau akaijau, | Are we two, or you and I. |
| | { | Ecrau aijumrau, | Are we two, or he and I. |
| 2. | | Ekau aijaurau, | Are you two. |
| 3. | | Erau arau, | Are they two. |

Trial.

- | | | | |
|----|---|--------------------------|----------------------------------|
| 1. | { | Ehtaij akataij, | Are we three, or you two and I. |
| | { | Ehtaij aijumtaij, | Are we three, or they two and I. |
| 2. | | Ehtaij aijautaij, | Are you three. |
| 3. | | Ehtaij ahtaij, | Are they three. |

Plural.

- | | | | |
|----|---|---------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1. | { | Inta akaija, | Are we, or you three or more and I. |
| | { | Ecra aijama, | Are we, or they three or more and I. |
| 2. | | Eka aijaua, | Are you, four or more. |
| 3. | | Era ara, | Are they, four or more. |

PAST TENSE.

Singular.

- | | | |
|----|--------------------|------------------------------|
| 1. | Kis ainyak, | Was I, or I was. |
| 2. | As aick, | Wast thou, or thou wast, &c. |
| 3. | Is aien, | Was he. |

Dual.

- | | | | |
|----|---|------------------------|----------------------------|
| 1. | { | Intis akaijau, | Were we two, or you and I. |
| | { | Ecrus aijumrau, | Were we two, or he and I. |
| 2. | | Akis aijaurau, | Were you two. |
| 3. | | Erus arau, | Were they two. |

Trial.

- | | | | |
|----|---|--------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 1. | { | Taijis akataij, | Were we three, or you two and I. |
| | { | Taijis aijumtaij, | Were we three, or they two and I. |
| 2. | | Taijis aijautaij, | Were you three. |
| 3. | | Taijis ahtaij, | Were they three. |

Plural.

- | | | | |
|----|---|----------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 1. | { | Intis akaija. | Were we, or you three or more and I. |
| | { | Ecris aijama, | Were we, or they three or more and I. |
| 2. | | Akis aijaua, | Were you. |
| 3. | | Ecris ara, | Were they. |

THE FUTURE TENSE.

Singular.

- | | | |
|----|-------------------------------------|--------------------------------|

SYNTAX.

The following are a few of the rules more or less peculiar to the Aneityumese language, viz. :—

1. The adjective generally follows the noun, as—

Natimi upene—A man good, for, A good man.

2. The nominative generally follows the verb, as—

Ek atga ainyak—Am going I, for, I am going, or I go.

3. The principal verb comes between the auxiliary verb to be and the nominative, as—

Era umjeg ara—Are sleeping they, for, They are sleeping, or they sleep.

4. The objective follows the verb, but is placed before the nominative, as—

Akis arud yin aijana—Were striking him you, for, You were striking him, or you struck him.

5. A verb followed by two objectives has the person before the thing, as—

Eris alupai yin nohoanma ara—Were giving him breadfruit they, for, They gave him breadfruit.

6. Some verbs have a singular form before a singular objective, and a plural form before a plural objective, as Ati, ikni; leh, lucse, thus—

Ek ati nitai inigki ainyak—Am placing this thing I, for, I am placing this thing, or I place this thing.

Ek ikni nitai iji igki ainyak—Am placing these things I, for, I am placing these things, or I place these things.

7. The nominative and also the auxiliary verb are often omitted in the second person singular imperative, as—

Aiheue vai nyak, for Namu aiheue vai nyak aiek—Have mercy upon me, for, Do thou have mercy upon me.

8. When two nouns come together signifying different things, the first is put in the possessive case, as—

Risi Tisian—The mother of Tisian, for, Tisian's mother.

9. Neuter nouns have no pronouns in the nominative case, but n affixed to ira represents the objective case of the pronoun, as—

Is uha kuri o un, ja is eti yctpan iran aien—His dog ran away, but he did not overtake it.

10. The comparative degree is generally formed by esjilid, followed by iran, as—

Et esjilid iran yehki inpee inigki—This country is better than that.

11. Verbs and adjectives become nouns by prefixing n or in, as—

Amen, to abide; namen, abiding; upene, good; nupene, goodness.

12. Im joins nouns, um joins verbs, as—

Nohatag im nobohtan—Heaven and earth.

Atidai aiek um apan—Rise and go.

13. Certain conjunctions have corresponding conjunctions, as—

Kit,	Ka ei.
El,	El.
Idim,	Idivaig.

14. Questions are generally asked by adding ka o'o to the end of the sentence, as—

Et umoh aien, ku o'o?—Is living he or not? for, Is he alive?

15. Questions are answered in the negative by o'o, not or no; and in the affirmative by maiya, yes, a statement of fact, or eâm, an indistinct utterance; but accepted as quite polite for a simple acquiescence or promise, as—

Napu auritai aiek, ka o'o?—Will you work?

Eâm—Yes.

Na mun ago chni nauritai unyum aiek, ka o'o?—Have you finished your work, or not?

Maiya—Yes.

16. Must is expressed in three ways, as—

Et upene vai nyak par ago nitai inigki—It is good for me to do this, or I must do this.

Eris idim ika an ago nitai inigki aiek—It is affirmed that thou do this thing, or thou must do this thing.
